新托福單字填空題（Complete the Words）是新制托福閱讀中的一種題型，考生會看到一段約 70-100 字的短文，部分單字會被挖空後半部分的字母。考生需根據上下文語意和拼字規則，填寫缺失的字母，使單字完整且符合文義。每篇短文中通常有 10 個這樣的單字需作答。此種題型設計來測試考生對詞彙的掌握以及在語境中判斷詞義與拼寫的能力。

題型特點包括：

- 第一句話通常完整，作為上下文提示。
- 從第二句開始，文章中每隔一個單字就會缺失後半部分字母。
- 考生依據語意線索、句法結構及拼寫規則補全單字。
- 共有 10 個單字需要補全。
- 這與傳統的完型填空題不同，強調單字拼寫的正確性。

其意義是幫助考生練習多層次的詞彙理解和拼寫技巧，並能在真實語境中靈活運用詞彙

Skills :

1. 首先，通讀整篇文章以瞭解上下文，然後根據上下文選擇最合適的單詞。
2. 避免在任何單一空缺處停留太久，以更精確有效率管理時間。
3. 對可能成為考題之固定片語與避留心注意。
4. 填寫空白時注意動詞時態、單複數形式與正確的詞性。
5. 最後預留時間檢查答案的拼寫準確性、上下文一致性，以及是否包含任何指導性詞語或短語。
6. 在備考時，積累常見搭配和介詞，並熟悉以特定字母組合開頭的單詞（例如，st ——step, stop, star, store）以增強快速記憶。

介詞 （務必注意，介詞後大多數情況只能跟名詞或者動名詞，即 Ving）

- in 後跟地點和空間
- at 後跟地點（通常指小地點，然而，做題時如果在一個地點前給了 a_ 此時，空格，不要猶豫則填寫 at）
- at 後跟具體的幾點幾分
- on 後跟具體的某一天
- on 後面不跟時間不跟地點時 = about ; information on 或用法經常會在 on 或 about 後加一個名詞子句，比如 The scholar told his team a story on what the king had invented.
- in 後跟時間段，比如世紀、年代、月份等
- in 後面不跟時間不跟地點時，譯為“在某方面或領域”
- for 後跟持續的一段時間
- from A to B / between A and B 從 A 時間點到 B 時間點
- by 後跟交通工具（在此交通工具不用變複數）
- by 後跟動作的發出者（被動語態：主語+ be + Vpp+ by+ 動作發出者）
- by 後跟變化量（比如“上升了 10%，即為 increase by 10%）
- by + doing 譯為“通過做某事”
- of + A 譯為“A 的.....”（ex. the stock price of A Company）
- with 後跟 “工具” 譯為“使用某工具”
- with 後跟 “物品” 譯為“擁有或者攜帶某物”
- with 後跟“人” 譯為“和某人一起”
- through + 方式/方法 譯為“通過某方式或方法”
- as to = about 譯為關於
- at 後面可跟“價格，年齡，速度”
- for 後跟“目的或原因”，譯為“為了.....”

Newspaper in Western Europe

By the eighteenth century, newspapers had become firmly established as a means of spreading news of European and world affairs, as well as of local concerns, within European society. One of the first true newspapers was the Dutch paper Nieuwe Tidingen. It began publication in the early seventeenth century at about the same time that the overseas trading company called the Dutch East India Company was formed. The same ships that brought goods back from abroad brought news of the world, too.

Dutch publishers had an advantage over many other publishers around Europe because the Netherlands' highly decentralized political system made its censorship laws very difficult to enforce. (A) ■ Throughout Europe in the seventeenth century, governments began recognizing the revolutionary potential of the free press and began requiring licenses of newspapers—to control who was able to publish news. (B) ■ Another tactic, in France and elsewhere on the continent from the 1630s onward, was for governments to sponsor official newspapers. (C) ■ These state publications met the increasing demand for news but always supported the government's views of the events of the day. (D) ■

By the eighteenth century, new conditions allowed newspapers to flourish as never before. First, demand for news increased as Europe's commercial and political interests spread around the globe—merchants in London, Liverpool, or Glasgow, for example, came to depend on early news of Caribbean harvests and gains and losses in colonial wars. Europe's growing commercial strength also increased distribution networks for newspapers. There were more and better roads, and more vehicles could deliver newspapers in cities and convey them to outlying towns. Newspaper publishers made use of the many new sites where the public expected to read, as newspapers were delivered to cafes and sold or delivered by booksellers.

Second, many European states had established effective postal systems by the eighteenth century. It was through the mail that readers outside major cities and their environs—and virtually all readers in areas where press censorship was exercised firmly—received their newspapers. One of the most successful newspapers in Europe was a French-language paper (one of the many known as La Gazette,) published in Leiden, in the Netherlands, which boasted a wide readership in France and among elites throughout Europe.

Finally, press censorship faltered in one of the most important markets for news—England—at the turn of the eighteenth century after 1688. debate raged about whether the Parliament or the Crown had the right to control the press, and in the confusion the press flourished. The emergence of political parties further hampered control of the press because political decisions in Parliament now always involved compromise, and many members believed that an active press was useful to that process. British government's control of the press was reduced to taxing newspapers, a tactic that drove some papers out of business.

Eighteenth-century newspapers were modest products by modern Western standards. Many were published only once or twice a week instead of every day, in editions of only a few thousand copies. Each newspaper was generally only four pages long. Illustrations were rare, and headlines had not yet been invented. Hand-operated wooden presses were used to print the papers, just as they had been used to print pamphlets and books since the invention of printing in the fifteenth century.

Yet these newspapers had a dramatic impact on their reading public. Regular production of newspapers (especially of many competing newspapers) meant that news was presented to the public at regular intervals and in manageable amounts. Even strange and threatening news from around the world became increasingly easy for readers to absorb and interpret. Newspaper readers also felt themselves part of the public life about which they were reading. This was true partly because newspapers, available in public reading rooms and in cafes, were one kind of reading that occupied an increasing self-aware and literate audience. Newspapers also were uniquely responsive to their readers. They began to carry advertisements, which both produced revenue for papers and widened readers' exposure to their own communities. Even more important was the inauguration of letters to the editor in which readers expressed their opinions about events. Newspapers thus became venues for the often rapid exchange of news and opinions.

Paragraph 1

By the eighteenth century, newspapers had become firmly established as a means of spreading news of European and world affairs, as well as of local concerns, within European society. One of the first true newspapers was the Dutch paper Nieuwe Tijdingen. It began publication in the early seventeenth century at about the same time that the overseas trading company called the Dutch East India Company was formed. The same ships that brought goods back from abroad brought news of the world, too.

1. According to paragraph 1, what was true about the Dutch paper Nieuwe Tijdingen ?
- (A) It reported news mainly about ships and trade goods.
 - (B) It was established in the eighteenth century.
 - (C) It was among the first real newspapers in Europe.
 - (D) It was published by an overseas trading company.

Paragraph 2

Dutch publishers had an advantage over many other publishers around Europe because the Netherlands' highly decentralized political system made its censorship laws very difficult to enforce. Throughout Europe in the seventeenth century, governments began recognizing the revolutionary potential of the free press and began requiring licenses of newspapers—to control who was able to publish news. Another tactic, in France and elsewhere on the continent from the 1630s onward, was for governments to sponsor official newspapers. These state publications met the increasing demand for news but always supported the government's views of the events of the day.

2. Paragraph 2 suggests that the main reason why governments began to license newspapers was
- (A) to make sure that newspapers were of high quality
 - (B) to provide their countries' publishers with an advantage over other

European publishers

- (C) to reduce competition among government-sponsored newspapers
- (D) to help control the public's attitudes about the news

3. According to paragraph 2, what was true about official government newspapers?

- (A) They made censorship laws more difficult to enforce.
- (B) They expanded the revolutionary potential of the press.
- (C) They appeared first in the Netherlands.
- (D) They always agreed with the government's opinion.

Paragraph 3

By the eighteenth century, new conditions allowed newspapers to flourish as never before. First, demand for news increased as Europe's commercial and political interests spread around the globe—merchants in London, Liverpool, or Glasgow, for example, came to depend on early news of Caribbean harvests and gains and losses in colonial wars. Europe's growing commercial strength also increased distribution networks for newspapers. There were more and better roads, and more vehicles could deliver newspapers in cities and convey them to outlying towns. Newspaper publishers made use of the many new sites where the public expected to read, as newspapers were delivered to cafes and sold or delivered by booksellers.

4. According to paragraph 3, why did demand for news increase in the eighteenth century?

- (A) People wanted to read about the new books being sold by booksellers.
- (B) Governments wanted to make sure their colonies were being governed efficiently.
- (C) Merchants needed to know how their businesses would be affected by events in other countries.
- (D) Owners of cafes needed to predict how foreign harvests might affect food prices.

Paragraph 4

Second, many European states had established effective postal systems by the eighteenth century. It was through the mail that readers outside major cities and their environs—and virtually all readers in areas where press censorship was exercised firmly—received their newspapers. One of the most successful newspapers in Europe was a French-language paper (one of the many known as La Gazette,) published in Leiden, in the Netherlands, which boasted a wide readership in France and among elites throughout Europe.

5. The word “exercised” in the passage is closest in meaning to
- (A) criticized
 - (B) rejected
 - (C) applied
 - (D) compelled
6. In paragraph 4, why does the author mention “a French language paper that was published in Leiden”?
- (A) To show that the most successful newspapers in Europe tended to be French-language newspapers
 - (B) To illustrate the important role played by the mail in the distinction of newspapers
 - (C) To provide evidence that newspapers were being read by the elites of Europe
 - (D) To establish that the Netherlands had one of the most effective postal systems in Europe

Paragraph 5

Finally, press censorship faltered in one of the most important markets for news—England—at the turn of the eighteenth century after 1688. debate raged about whether the Parliament or the Crown had the right to control the press, and in the confusion the press flourished. The emergence of political parties further hampered control of the press because political decisions in Parliament now always involved compromise, and many members believed that an active press was useful to that process. British government's control of the press was reduced to taxing newspapers, a tactic that drove some papers out of business.

7. The word "emergence" in the passage is closest in meaning to
- (A) influence
 - (B) dissipation
 - (C) rise
 - (D) stagnation
8. The word "tactic" in the passage is closest in meaning to
- (A) strategy
 - (B) plight
 - (C) requirement
 - (D) sanction
9. According to paragraph 5, many members of Parliament held which of the following views about the English press?
- (A) It had the effect of increasing tensions between Parliament and the monarchy.
 - (B) It created pressure that encouraged political opponents to reach agreement.
 - (C) It helped create the confusion that led to the emergence of political parties.
 - (D) It could be more effectively controlled by compromise than by taxing newspapers.

Paragraph 6

Eighteenth-century newspapers were modest products by modern Western standards. Many were published only once or twice a week instead of every day, in editions of only a few thousand copies. Each newspaper was generally only four pages long. Illustrations were rare, and headlines had not yet been invented. Hand-operated wooden presses were used to print the papers, just as they had been used to print pamphlets and books since the invention of printing in the fifteenth century.

10. According to paragraph 6, all of the following are true of eighteenth-century newspapers EXCEPT:

- (A) They usually were published no more than twice a week.
- (B) They generally consisted of four pages.
- (C) They included numerous illustrations.
- (D) They had no headlines.

Paragraph 7

Yet these newspapers had a dramatic impact on their reading public. Regular production of newspapers (especially of many competing newspapers) meant that news was presented to the public at regular intervals and in manageable amounts. Even strange and threatening news from around the world became increasingly easy for readers to absorb and interpret. Newspaper readers also felt themselves part of the public life about which they were reading. This was true partly because newspapers, available in public reading rooms and in cafes, were one kind of reading that occupied an increasingly self-aware and literate audience. Newspapers also were uniquely responsive to their readers. They began to carry advertisements, which both produced revenue for papers and widened readers' exposure to their own communities. Even more important was the inauguration of letters to the editor in which readers expressed their opinions about events. Newspapers thus became venues for the often rapid exchange of news and opinions.

12. According to paragraph 7, newspapers had all of the following effects on their readers EXCEPT:

- (A) They found it easier to understand news from other countries.
- (B) They became more successful in business than those who did not read newspapers.
- (C) They became better connected to their local communities.
- (D) They could write about their own opinions on current events.

Paragraph 2

Dutch publishers had an advantage over many other publishers around Europe because the Netherlands' highly decentralized political system made its censorship laws very difficult to enforce. (A)■ Throughout Europe in the seventeenth century, governments began recognizing the revolutionary potential of the free press and began requiring licenses of newspapers—to control who was able to publish news. (B)■ Another tactic, in France and elsewhere on the continent from the 1630s onward, was for governments to sponsor official newspapers. (C)■ These state publications met the increasing demand for news but always supported the government's views of the events of the day. (D)■

13. Look at the four squares [■] that indicate where the following sentence could be added to the passage.

And even when it was possible to apply laws limiting speech, authorities were reluctant to do so because of the growing economic importance of the commercial book market.

Where would the sentence best fit? Click on a square [■] to add the sentence to the passage.

TOEFL READING 解題技巧

TOEFL 閱讀技巧 – 否定細節題

(Negative Detailed Information)

TOEFL Reading 否定事實資訊題”(Negative Factual Detailed Information) 主要核心乃在於測驗考生能否掌握文章之主要訊息，排除一些與文章內容無關之訊息的能力。

Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passages?

The author mentions all of the followings..... , EXCEPT?

Paragraph 3

The spread of this river valley agriculture in various parts of Asia and Africa was the decisive factor in the rise of the first civilizations. The increase in food production in these regions led to a significant growth in population, while efforts to control the flow of water to maximize the irrigation of cultivated areas and to protect the local inhabitants from hostile forces outside the community provoked the first steps toward cooperative activities on a large scale. The need to oversee the entire process brought about the emergence of an elite that was eventually transformed into a government.

Q: According to paragraph 3, which of the following is NOT a reason why governments first arose among agricultural communities?

- (A) A significant increase in population
- (B) The desire to control water resources for irrigation
- (C) The need for protection from outside forces
- (D) The demand for organized communication with other communities

一、列舉題兩大分類：集中列舉和分散列舉

1. 集中列舉

集中列舉的乃指：三個名詞/詞彙/事件/現象連續出現，各個名詞/詞彙/事件/現象之間以逗號隔開；三個短語連續出現；三個句子連續出現。

對於集中列舉題，僅根據題幹或選項定位原文，逐一比對訊息之描述，排除在原文的集中列舉之處出現的三個選項，其餘則為正確答案。

2. 分散列舉

分散列舉，顧名思義，意指選項之訊息出現於段落位置極廣與分散，可能出現於同一段落之中，或分佈于全文各段。

對於分散列舉，同樣地，需要根據題幹或選項定位原文，將各個選項與所對應的原文逐個進行比較，採用排除法，在原文未提到或與原文相矛盾的選項為正確答案。解答這類題目需要注意文章每個段落的首尾句。

因此類型題為否定細節題，偶有否定字詞出現於原文，此時該否定詞之敘述概為答案之所在。

二、否定細節題解題技巧：

1. 審視題幹搜索關鍵字：

題幹敘述若有與原文相同詞語，即是核心關鍵字，將此 Key words 回原文定位，然後將四個選項與定位所在之訊息逐一比對。

然而，若無關鍵字，則因 TOEFL Reading (除插入句外) 所有題目皆依順序出題，因此可以先定位於上一個問題對應段落之後續的段落。

2. 閱讀四個選項：

若題幹中無任何明顯線索可依循，則先閱讀四個選項，總結其中的共同點進行定位，或者根據各個選項中的關鍵字一一進行定位。

3. 排除與原文相符的選項：

將各個選項與原文比較以後，排除其中符合原文意思的選項，剩餘之選項，或者與原文相矛盾，抑或原文未提及之訊息，即是答案。

總之，否定細節題 (Negative Factual Detailed Information) 之基本主軸是排除與原文相符之選項，選擇與原文相矛盾/ 相衝突/ 扞格不入/ 過度延伸之選項或原文未提到之選項即是正確答案。
